Additional Information I want to be creative, come up with new ways of looking at things. To have fun while solving problems, make things bigger and better. To see people interact with and have fun using things I make. To do something new, something different, not the same old thing. Part business, part creative, and part developer,

I bring unique insights and perspectives to problems. Understanding and balancing the technical needs and limits with the business goals and requirements of a project while maintaining healthy relationships with clients and co-workers.
